Excerpt: . the gold found in placer diggings is in small particles, though sometimes a large nugget is found. Probably the largest ever found was at Ballarat, Australia. This was worth over forty-six thousand dollars. Here are some of the workers in a gold mine. The men are drilling in a true fissure gold vein in order to blast out the ore, and the patient donkey is waiting to take his car to the elevator as soon as it is filled. This miner is getting ready to blast the rock. First he made a hole in the rock, and then fastened in it something that looks a little like a candle. It isn't a candle that we should care to light in the ordinary way, however, for it is made of dynamite. After the miner connects a fuse with it, he will pack the...
