He did the office of a pastor or parochus of the Court, somewhat after the fashion of the mediaeval Clerks of the Closet, who were, in fact, Court confessors. And I have heard him say, proceeds his brother, that, for the number of persons that resided in the Court, a place reputed a centre of all vice and irreligion, he thought there were as many truly pious and strictly religious as could be found in any other resort whatsoever; and he never saw so much fervent devotion, and such frequent acts of piety and charity, as his station gave him occasion to observe there. It often falls out that extremes are conterminous, and, as contraries, illustrate each other: so here virtue and vice. We are glad to hear...
